Week 4 Individual Assignment

I attended the QGIS Workshop on Thursday and learned how to make a map using QGIS. Our assignment was to create a map reflecting a 20 min commute from UCLA where rent is less than $1,300 per month and at least two grocery stores within a 400 meter buffer zone around the apartment. I really enjoyed this workshop because it reminded me a lot of ArcGIS, which was the program we learned for GIS in my undergrad university. I also think that QGIS is a great application due to its easy access and free download from the internet. In the map we created, we found two apartments that met the parameters we were looking for.
